7 Signs Your Job is Suffocating Your Soul (Plus a Quiz!)

By Angela Artemis

Intuition Expert & Soul Purpose Prosperity Coach

Introduction

Hi, I'm Angela Artemis and I'm passionate about helping frustrated soulful individuals like you break through from being stuck to having the ideal career and life you dream of.

I am here to show you how your job may slowly be draining you of life by suffocating your soul and how you can escape, find the work you love and reclaim your joy for living.

Find out how this can be your reality in this report today.

You're in the right place if you...

- Get knots in your stomach on Sundays when you think about going to work on Monday.
- Feel like your job is just a paycheck and nothing more and have no interest in being promoted or taking on more responsibility at work.
- Dream of all the things you want to do when you're not at the office and live for 5 o'clock and the weekends.

- Constantly scour the internet and job boards looking for “the way out.”
- Are tired of second guessing yourself and struggling with indecision in your life.
- Want the insight to know what to do and the confidence to take action
- Feel stuck in a job that is out of alignment with your soul and held back by not knowing your purpose and having no clarity about what to do next.
- Have a yearning deep down to live a bigger life on a bigger playing field but have no clue what this type of life would look like.

If any of this sounds like you, I am so glad that you’re reading this report today.

I want you to know that it is possible for you to live how I now live, an “intuitively inspired life”, where you learn how to allow your intuition to lead you to everything you desire, such as a more fulfilling successful career, great opportunities and prosperity!

You need to experience living an “intuitively inspired life” to see how beautifully everything falls into place when you allow your intuition to guide you. This is the way the most successful people live – by following their own inner guidance. From Steve Jobs to Einstein to Oprah the one thing they all have in common is allowing their intuitively inspired ideas guide them to success on a grand scale.

When you are looking to make big changes to your life and reinvent yourself you must be able to trust and rely on your intuition to lead you to those once in a lifetime opportunities and serendipitous gifts along the way. Do you think that Oprah would be where she is now if she hadn't listened to her hunches? She is the first to admit that listening to her inner guidance opened every door in her life.

Your intuition is not only your inner GPS to take you where you want to go in life, but a magnet, pulling synchronicity and serendipity toward you when you learn how to work with it. This is the "Intuition Principle" way of living an "intuitively inspired life" and this is why learning how to activate your intuition to its highest level literally brings the world right to your doorstep!

That's the beauty of The Intuition Principle way of living. I want to help you experience the magic of living an intuitively inspired life the Intuition Principle way too. I want you to have this magnetic GPS system working for you in your life pulling in every single opportunity for your success and prosperity you can imagine. Living this way is fun and absolutely thrilling! It's an adventure that never ends and keeps you excited and enthused about being in charge of your destiny and creating your wonderful life. That's what we're talking about today.

Before we dive into the 7 Signs Your Job is Suffocating Your Soul, I want to tell you a bit about my background and why I am so passionate about sharing this information with you.

A little bit about me, I have always been highly intuitive. When I first went to college I was unsure about picking a major; you see there were no courses on metaphysics then and the only major that came close was psychology.

My father really wanted me to be an accountant. To please him I ignored my inner promptings and began studying accounting — which I hated! UGH. I ended up a business major and later on in a finance career by default. I spent twenty years in finance because rather than listen to my intuition and pursue what was right for me I did what was “expected” of me.

Does this sound familiar?

By the seventh year I was so totally miserable. I began looking everywhere for the “way out.” I decided the way out was to go back to school to study writing. At that time I didn’t understand that it was my intuition speaking to me as I was being drawn to go back to school to study writing and journalism. The only thing I was aware of was the acute pain I was in everyday going to my job and the suffering is what drove me to find a solution.

It took me another 8 long years of suffering to actually get the courage to quit my job and go back to school. At this time the idea of “following your passion” was just becoming accepted and I was very scared about giving up a paycheck to live off my savings account. I was so afraid of telling my boss that I was giving up this great job but to my amazement I was given accolades for following my heart and a six month leave of absence with full benefits in case I changed my mind and wanted to come back! Talk about serendipity!

I loved feeling so free to pursue my passion for writing and I was never happier in my life; everything just flowed perfectly in the most unimaginable ways — more serendipity. I won numerous academic awards and several scholarships as an undergraduate that helped me financially, was honored by the faculty and then got a scholarship to a prestigious graduate program. After which.....I took a big step back.

Long story short, I was running out of money and stopped following my passion which I now know is “listening to my intuition.” I took a part-time sales position in the financial industry while in graduate school and got caught up in making money during one the greatest economic booms in history. I was divorced and had no means of supporting myself other than to work so I went back to what was familiar and downplayed the importance of pursuing what I loved – again for another 10 years - until I couldn’t stand it a minute more.

I worked ten hour days seven days a week in sales on 100 percent commission and but after a while the excitement of having money again wore off and I was plain miserable. You see, I had allowed myself to get taken in (once again) by the illusion that “being safe” by having money would make me happy. I hadn’t taken into account that I did not like the job I had to do to make the money. I vowed then and there to figure out how get off that merry-go-round once and for all!

That prompted me to start my current website, Powered by Intuition.com to help people. I wanted to share the mistakes I’d made by ignoring my intuition and getting stuck on the wrong path again and again so that they could avoid the same pitfalls as I had. I wrote my bestselling book, “The Intuition Principle: How to Attract the Life You Dream Of,” and soon my soul started singing and my excitement and enthusiasm for my life returned.

My book rapidly became a bestseller. My website, Powered by Intuition also took off. Finally, I was able to see the way out – it was right under my nose. I wanted to teach others how to really listen to their intuition and make the right decisions about changing careers so that they could do what I had done. I gave notice at my job and knew that this time I wasn't going back!

And now, I have taken the material from The Intuition Principle and created a power packed program to help you jettison your job and work and live life your way, joyfully and prosperously.

Take this short Quiz to see how many of these 7 signs your Job is Suffocating Your Soul apply in your life:

1. You feel tired all the time despite getting enough sleep. When we aren't doing what we love it takes much more energy to accomplish it. Think of it this way: if your job is to push a boulder uphill everyday wouldn't you be exhausted? But, if your job was to allow the boulder to roll downhill it would be easy and not tiring at all, right? When you do what you love your life flows much more easily. You're energized and enthusiastic and you can't wait to jump out of bed each day to do it. Who wouldn't want to feel like that?

2. You start feeling anxious and a sense of dread on Sunday afternoons knowing that Monday morning is looming. The knot in your stomach and lump in your throat lead you to conclude that you can't handle another day of going to that soul sucking job. The truth is it's way more than just your job. Your intuition is using your body to send you a powerful warning with these Sunday afternoon symptoms that you have strayed from the course you were meant to follow in this life and are now barreling down the wrong path. Inside you let out a silent scream, "This job is killing me and I know it but I'm trapped and I don't know what to do to get out of it."

3. You daydream while at work about all things you plan on doing when you're not working. You never tire of reading books, magazines or online blogs about the topic you most love. Whether it's about organic cooking and healthy eating, creating your unique knitting patterns, novel writing or creating your own spiritual healing practice you just can't get enough of it. You dream about what it would be like to be able to make your hobby your full time gig.

4. You no longer feel as if you fit in at work. No matter how hard you try you just don't have it in you to be a team player anymore. The goals of your department do not inspire you. You are becoming a different person and find it hard to talk to your co-workers. You're no longer able to relate to them because your interests outside of work have taken on a much more prominent role in your life than your job.

5. You have absolutely no interest in being promoted or in taking on more responsibility. When you first began your career you were an eager beaver but now you are much happier staying out of the spotlight. Your main objective is to keep your job by doing only what is expected of you to ensure you keep getting that weekly paycheck until you can decide on your next move.

6. You read everything you can get your hands on about how other people changed careers or started their own businesses. You attend workshops and take webinars to educate yourself on this topic. No matter what shows up in your inbox, if it is related to how to change your life and career you want in! You are an information junkie and need this “shot in the arm” to give you hope that someday you too can take this leap of faith.

7. Your body begins to react to the stress of your anxiety and unhappiness and it goes beyond being tired all the time. You may experience full blown anxiety attacks, asthma, headaches, joint pain, muscle aches, sleep problems, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, digestive problems such as irritable bowel syndrome, frequent colds and sore throats, hair falling out, aging, weight gain from stress eating, loss of appetite from stress and possibly worse symptoms of illnesses that are making your body break down. These symptoms are messages from your body telling you, “I can’t keep this up....I need relief from the stress you put me under.” You don’t want to push it any further. When it’s gone this far, it’s time to listen, don’t you think?

If you checked off even 1 or 2 of these signs there may be hope that you can revive your enthusiasm for your current career by perhaps, requesting a transfer to a different department.

If you resonate with three or four of these symptoms you are definitely a round peg being squeezed into a square hole every day! Pay attention before you hit bottom. It may be time to change employers at the very least.

If you identified with five, six or worse still all seven symptoms your soul is in agony and crying out for life saving relief from your present career. You are suffocating! You must find the career that resonates with your soul and take action to change your life now.

Now, imagine what your life would and could be like if each of these symptoms were reversed:

1. You are an Energizer Bunny! You have all the energy you need because you're excited and enthused about your life.

2. Sunday night anxiety – gone! You couldn't care less what day of the week it is because each day is yours to do as you wish.

3. No need to daydream and long for a different life. Now your life is just the way you envisioned it and you love it

4. You have new colleagues who are doing exactly what you're doing. You fit in perfectly and have everything in common with this circle of inspiring individuals.

5. You are no longer held back by a desire to not be promoted so your natural ambition returns in high gear to tackle your new career path and the money follows.

6. You are the one inspiring others now! You did what they dream of doing. You got out of the rat race and are blazing your own path.

7. You are in tip top shape and perfect health now that you are in charge of your time and schedule. You have the time and energy to exercise and to cook and eat healthy meals.

This - and more can be yours in your new life when you live what I call an "intuitively inspired" life. In fact, the sky is the limit. When you live an intuitively inspired life you never lack the innovative ideas you need to take your life up to the next level. You start living a bigger life in every sense of the word. And the more you allow yourself to flow with your intuition the more serendipity and synchronicity show up just when you need them to totally rock your world.

There are so many benefits of learning how to tap into your intuition but for now here are the ones you can't afford not to know:

By learning how to listen to your intuitive guidance and then follow this wisdom you will become a leader, taking your life to a completely different level.

When you activate your intuition you're accessing Greater Intelligence, a higher level of intelligence where your mind functions like a genius. This "unfair advantage" puts the power in your hands to create the life you've been dreaming of by allowing you to...

- Identify your strongest inborn intuitive pattern and use it to your advantage.
- Hear your inner voice louder and more clearly so that you recognize and select the right doors to open.

- Translate gut feelings into meaningful guidance that propels you toward finding your life purpose.
- Unleash your natural intuition & innate genius and use it to create a rock star new career.
- Know which financial opportunities to go after to increase your income.

Are you ready take back your time, claim your job independence and turn on your genius GPS?

Want to learn how using the Intuition Principle can free you to take your life to a whole new level of excitement, success and prosperity?
